General workplace policies and operating guidelines

DEMO DOCUMENT — Fictional company and policies created for testing DocuMind AI. Not legal, HR, or security advice.

1. Purpose and Scope

This handbook describes example workplace policies for Northstar Digital Solutions, a fictional software and consulting company. It applies to employees and interns unless a section states otherwise.

These policies are designed as sample knowledge-base content for testing document retrieval. In a real organization, approved policies and applicable local laws take precedence.

2. Working Hours and Attendance

Standard working hours are Monday through Friday, 9:30 AM to 6:30 PM, including a one-hour lunch break. Teams may agree on different schedules with manager approval.

Employees should record attendance using the company attendance system. If an employee expects to arrive more than 15 minutes late, they should notify their manager as soon as practical.

Repeated unexplained absence or inaccurate attendance records may be referred to Human Resources for review.

3. Remote and Hybrid Work

Eligible teams may work remotely up to two days per week with manager approval. Some roles may require office attendance because of customer, equipment, or operational needs.

Employees working remotely must protect confidential information, use approved devices and accounts, and remain available during their agreed working hours.

Remote-work arrangements may be reviewed when business requirements change.

4. Professional Conduct

Employees are expected to communicate respectfully, collaborate in good faith, and avoid harassment, discrimination, bullying, or retaliation.

Concerns about misconduct can be raised with a manager or Human Resources. Reports should be handled discreetly and reviewed fairly.

Employees must disclose potential conflicts of interest and must not use company resources for unlawful activity.

5. Confidentiality and Company Information

Non-public customer information, source code, credentials, business plans, employee records, and financial information must be treated as confidential.

Employees should share confidential information only with authorized people who need it for legitimate work. Confidential files must not be copied to personal accounts or unapproved storage services.

Confidentiality obligations continue after employment ends, subject to applicable law.

6. Equipment and Expenses

Company-issued laptops and accessories are intended primarily for work. Users must take reasonable care of equipment and report loss, theft, or damage promptly.

Business expenses require a receipt and manager approval. Expense claims should normally be submitted within 30 calendar days of the transaction.

Employees must return company equipment and access cards when requested or when their employment ends.

7. Questions and Policy Updates

Questions about interpreting this handbook should be directed to Human Resources. The company may update these sample policies as operational needs change.
